

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0032] A mobile device includes network interfaces for communicating wirelessly with two different networks. The mobile device may operate as a gateway between the two networks by switching between the two network interfaces in order to pass information from one network intended for the other network.